Song of the American Ivory Hunter.

I've trailed their spoors from Portland, Me., to Nashville, Tennessee; I've beat the bush from old Ft. Wayne across to Kankakee; Let T. R. trail the Amazon and Rainey haunt the Nile, But the tusks I'll get from the Michigan League will have theirs trimmed a mile.

Two hundred black men dance and cheer as the old safari swings; They've got their camels and their dogs and ninety other things; I trail alone from tank to tank wherever a game is played, But the tusks I'll get from the old Three-Eye are over the Congo

I've never seen a veldt or kop-not even from a train; I've yet to lamp an elephant upon his native plain; No swarthy bearer of a gun stands waiting at my call And yet I gather in the bone that makes the billiard ball.

I've trailed their spoors from old Kaintuck to Brocton by the sea; I've hunted them alone and bunched and trapped them with a fee; Let T. R. haunt Somaliland and Rainey trek the Nile, But the ivory from old Vermont has got theirs skinned a mile.

WOMEN TENNIS Anticipating a High Dive, STARS TO FIGHT Stadium Club Puts Up Net FOR SUPREMACY

Miss Bjurstedt, Mrs. Bundy and Mrs. Wightman Will Meet on Courts.

By JAMES S. O'NEALE.

The tennis season of 1915, that brought into competition three of the greatest women tennis stars that ever wielded racquets, is likely to be eclipsed in the number of meetings between the same three stars this season. The trio are Mrs. Thomas (Bundy (Miss May Sutton), of Los An geles; Miss Molla Bjurstedt, of Chris- OUIMET CASE TO BE tiania and Brooklyn, and Mrs. George W.
